Dear Mr. Jamois:

Since we last wrote you we have closed applications for the position of Director of the East Bay French-American School. In the interim we have also done an exhaustive analysis of candidates. As you know from our correspondence, your qualifications initially held interest for us. Unfortunately as we have endeavored to reduce the group of candidates to a final list, we have decided not to pursue your application further. This has been an extremely difficult decision for us. It was made on the basis of analyzing each individual candidate's qualifications and experience relative to the needs we have identified for our next Director. Every school has its unique characteristics and personality which must be taken into consideration. Your application was very compelling and your qualifications are excellent, but we did not find that your background matched our individual requirements as well as those of other applicants.

Please accept my regrets for this conclusion to our dialogue. We very much appreciate your interest and wish to compliment you on the record you have developed. Best of luck in the future.

Sincerely,

J.F. Longinotti
